Financial Literacy Course for Students

Lake County— Spring 2022 Lake County Treasurer, Michael Zuren and Lake County Auditor, Christopher Galloway are excited to announce the launch of a Financial Literacy course geared towards middle and high school aged students. The course topics will include planning and goals, career preparation, spending and credit, consumer protection, income, money management, saving and investing, and risk management.

“Financial education is a key component to prepare our students for success as adults,” said Michael Zuren, Lake County Treasurer.

“Our most important asset is our children, teaching skills and competencies will help prepare them to become responsible and contributing adults,” said Christopher Galloway, Lake County Auditor.

Why is financial education important? Students introduced to personal finance concepts at age appropriate levels can more easily apply sound decision-making skills, develop stable saving and spending habits, and link education success to career and life success.

We are pleased to offer this free, one-hour financial literacy PowerPoint presentation for middle and high school age students. Please contact us to schedule a presentation.
